UNIVERSAL DESIGN FOR LEARNING

What We're Really Talking About

When We're Talking About Universal Design for Learning

By Beth Stark, M.S.Ed., CPACC

About This Resource

This poster names five things we mean when we talk about Universal Design for Learning.

Text Version

What We're Really Talking About When We're Talking About Universal Design for Learning:

1. Creating the Conditions for Belonging
   Picture: a crowd of people of different ages, cultures and abilities, including a person using a wheelchair.
2. Believing In, and Empowering, Every Learner
   Picture: two hands holding up a person reading a book.
3. Embracing Variability
   Picture: five figures in different colours, arms joined in a circle.
4. Understanding that Barriers Exist in the Design of Learning Experiences and the Environment, Not the Learner
   Picture: a thumbs up with stars around it.
5. Engaging in the Iterative Design Process
   Picture: a cycle of four arrows labelled Plan, Do, Check and Action.

Reaching ALL Learners

About the Poster

This resource was created by Beth Stark, Inclusive Learning Systems. Licensed under CC BY-NC 4.0 (https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0/).